Dedication...

TO OUR COACHES, JOHNNY STOVALL, ROY JOHNSON, BILL ROARK & BILL McPHERSON, WE, THE "BULLDOG" STAFF, DEDICATE THE 1952 "TECH BULLDOG". IN APPRECIATION FOR THEIR GREAT EFFORTS IN SPORTS AND BETTERING STANDARDS OF OUR PLAY, WORK, AND EVEN OUR LIVES. THE BOYS WHO HAVE HAD THE 'PRIVILEGE' TO PLAY UNDER THESE COACHES WILL NEVER FORGET THEM. THEIRS IS THE JOB OF HAVING A PART IN MOULDING A BOY'S OUTLOOK ON HIS FELLOW MAN. WE THANK YOU COACHES FOR A JOB BEING DONE WELL. WE HOPE WE NEVER LET YOU DOWN.

Merle Technical High School

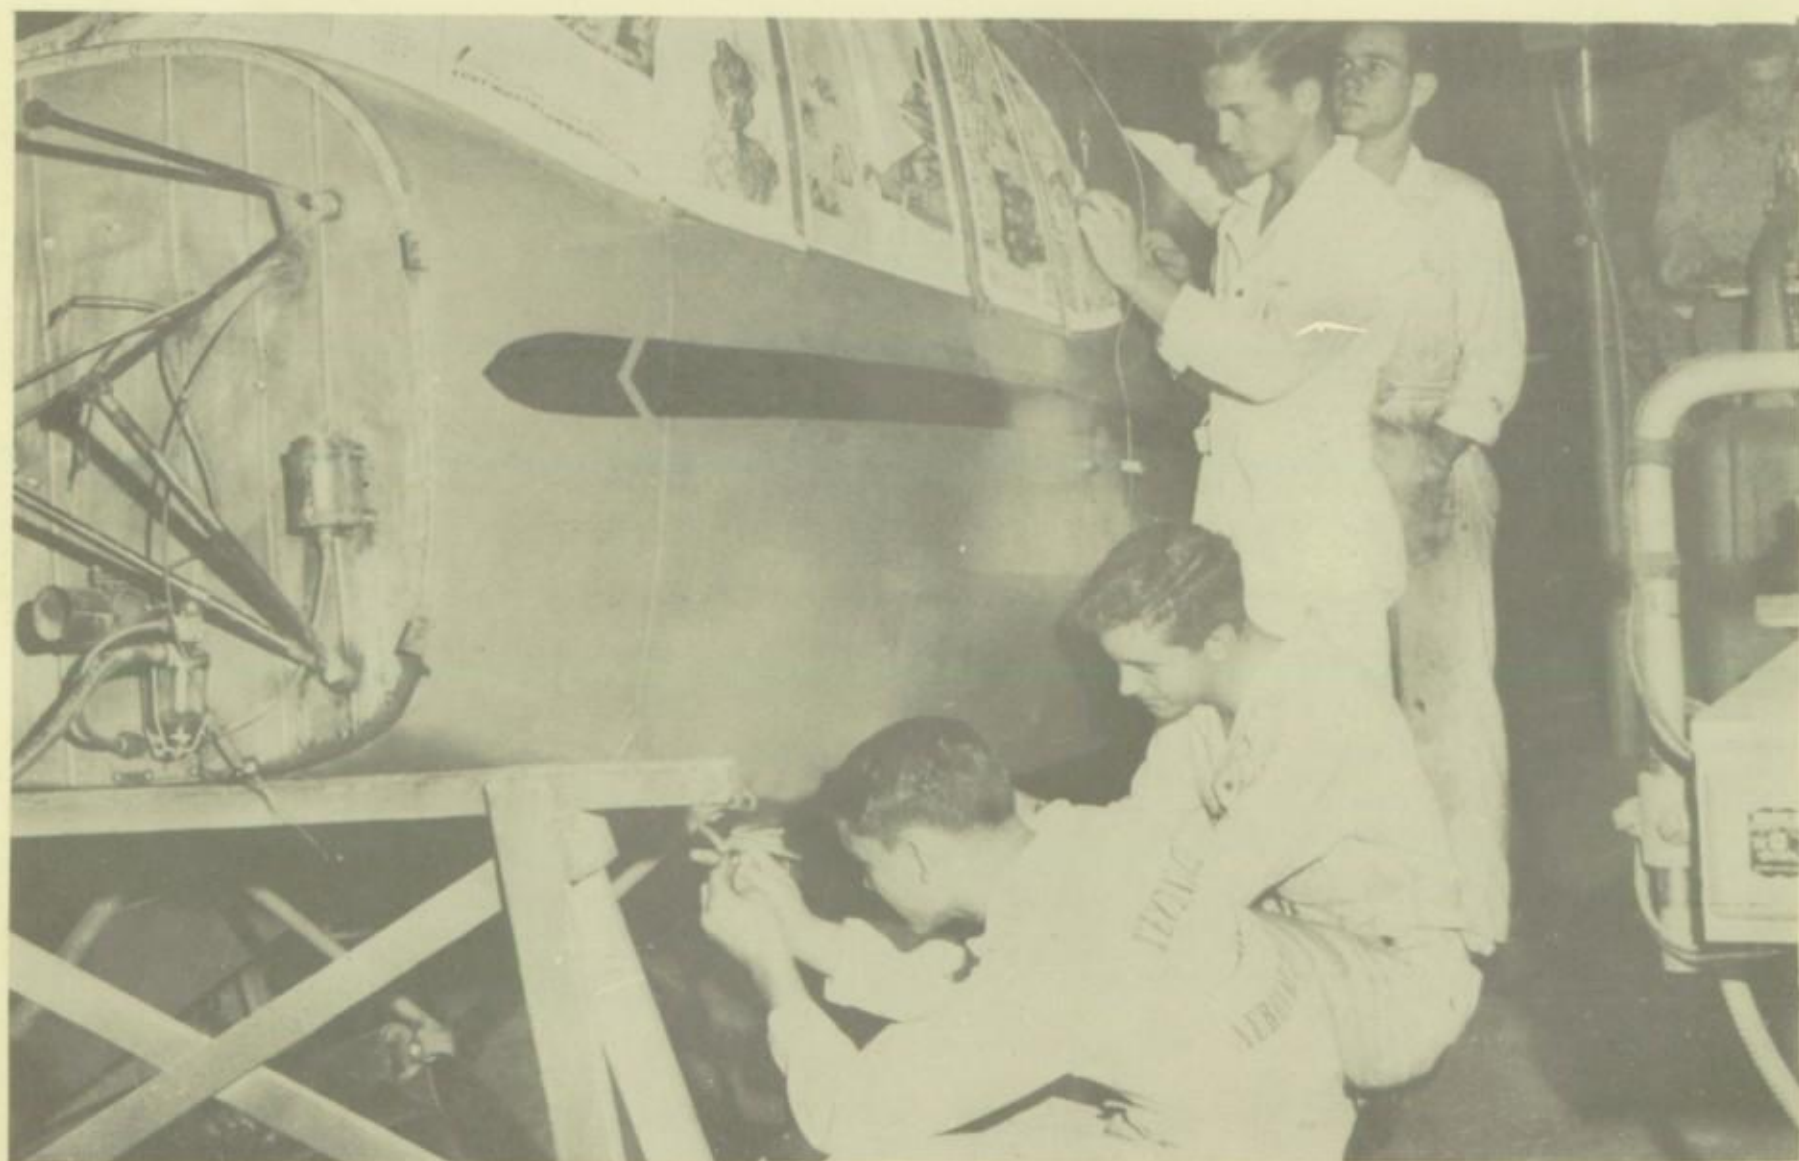

shops

Boys are studying the operation and trouble shooting on a Curtiss Electric propeller make-up.

A complete overhaul is made on a J-5 cub. This airplane is to be used by "Flying Bulldogs".

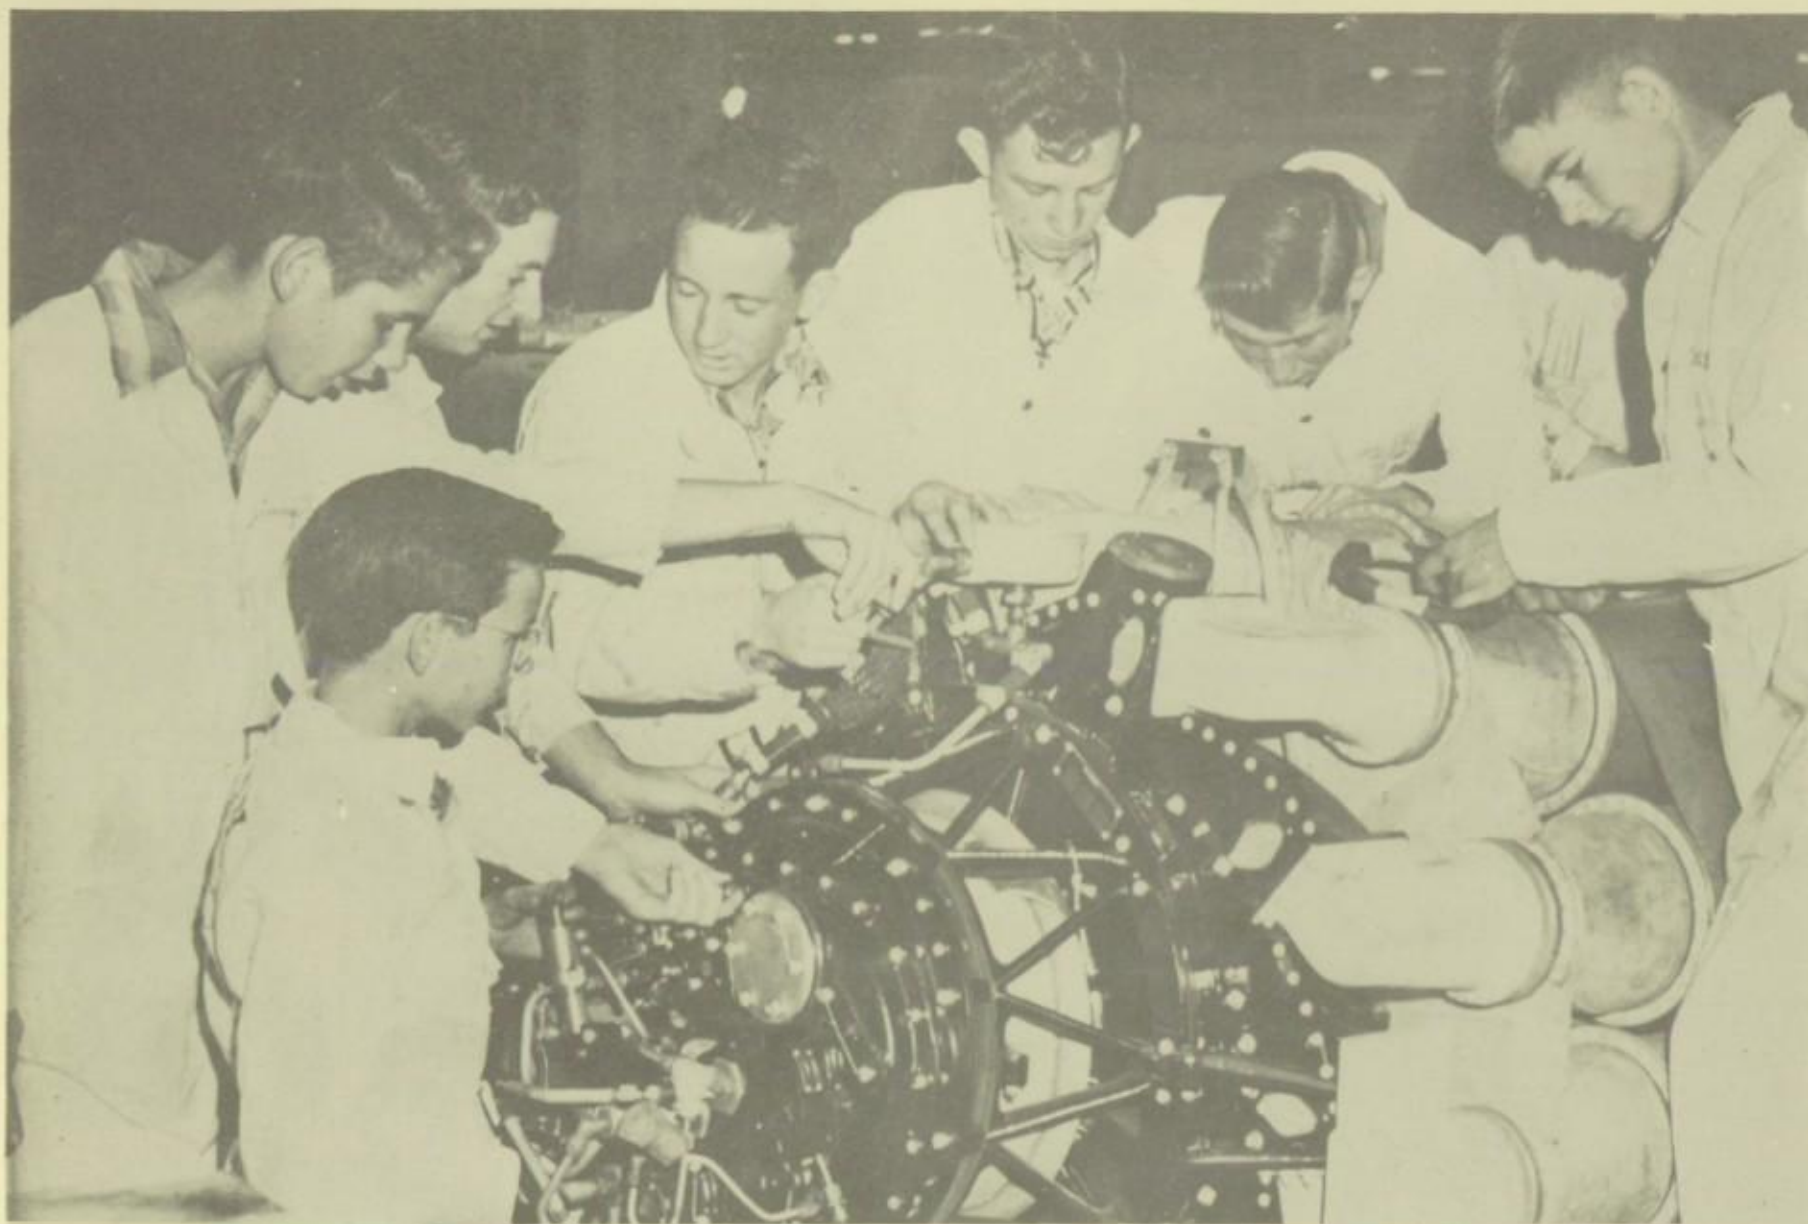

These boys are painting on registration numbers after a recover on Ercoupe wings.

R. 985 Engine overhaul is being made. Precision, measurement, and accuracy are a must in aircraft engine overhaul.

Aeronautics.

The aeronautics department, one of our newest courses which is held at the Technical Institute, promises to be one of the most interesting and exciting courses offered at Tech for air-minded students.

The general purpose of the course is to teach boys the theories of flight and to graduate students as licensed aircraft mechanics.

Students majoring in this department must be able to repair engines, use sewing machines on damaged aircraft, and also be able to mix and spray paint.

Another program of the aeronautics course is the Civil Air patrol, in which students attend meetings and receive further training in the aeronautics field.

Automotive students learn to do acetylene welding.

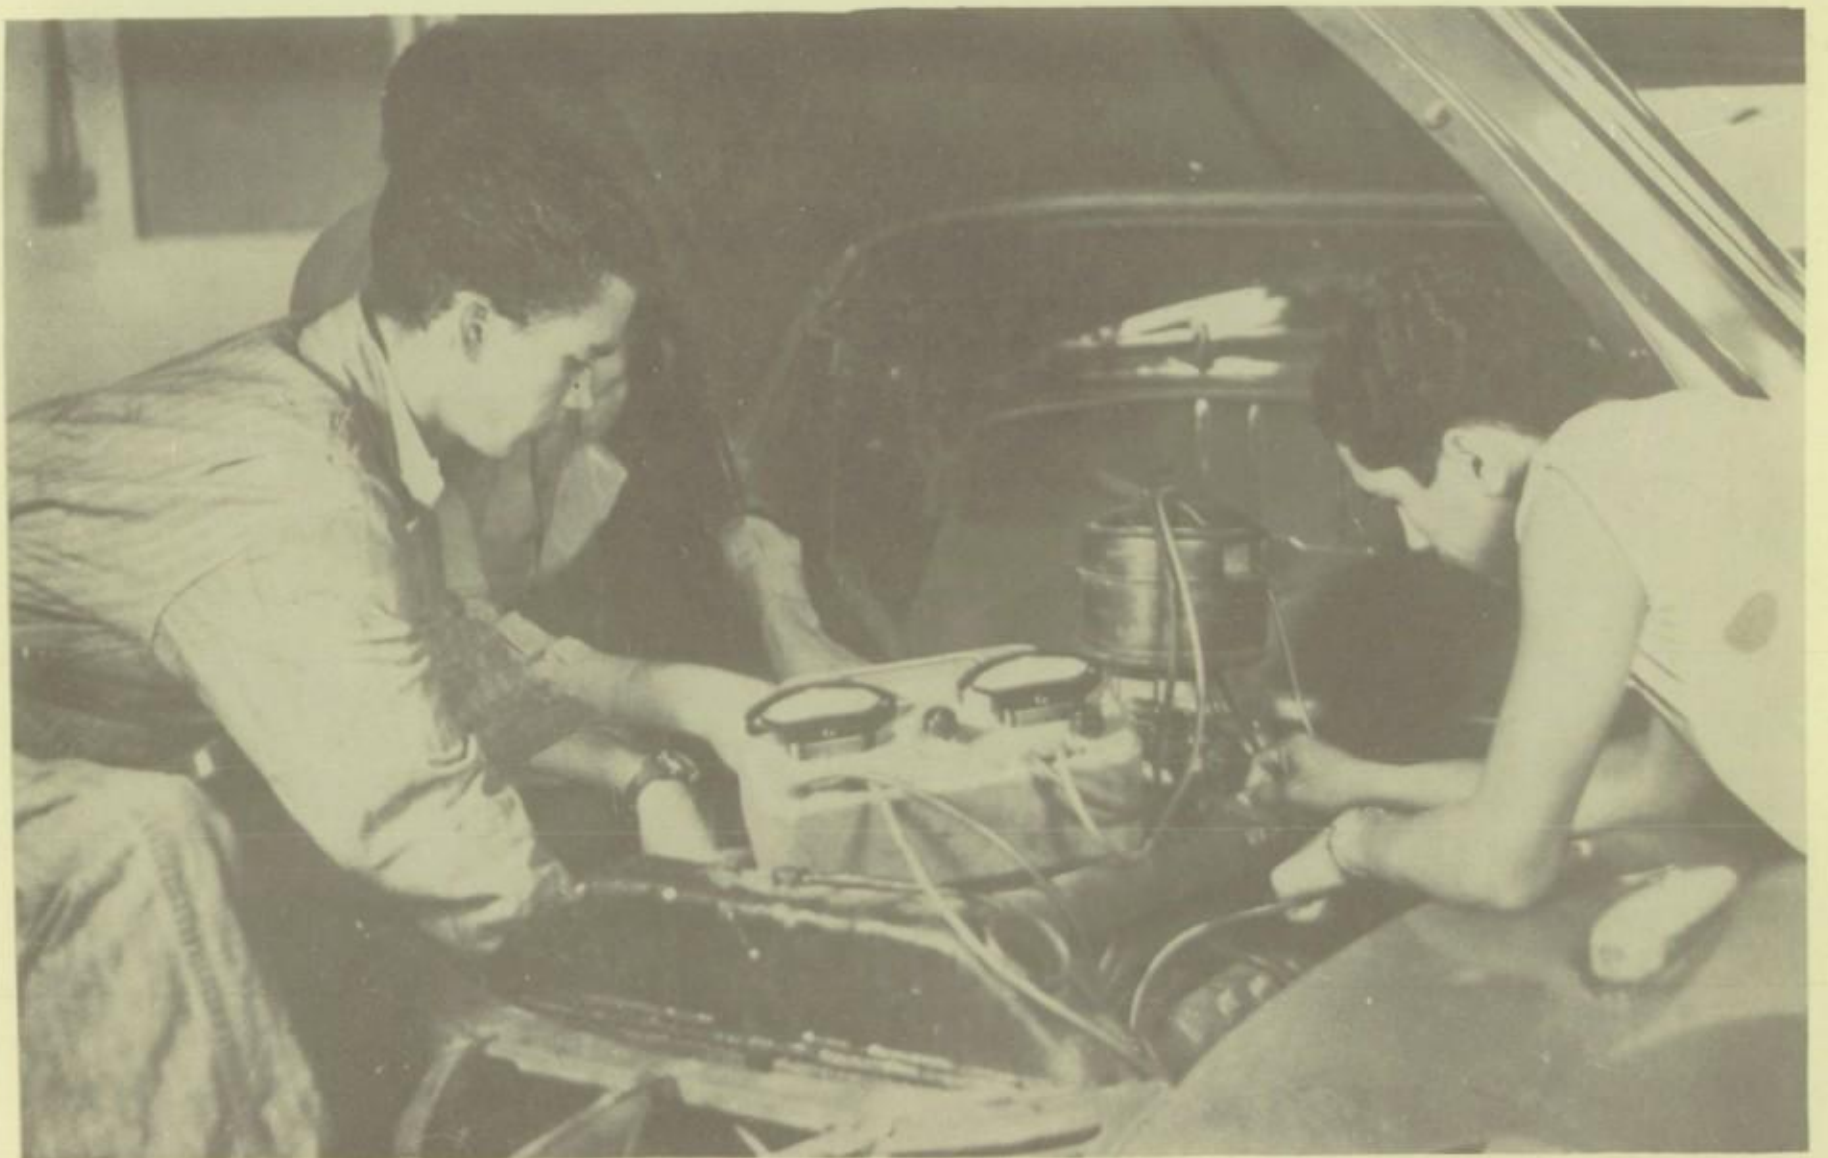

Starter generator test stands prove very helpful.

This V-8 engine gets a complete overhauling job.

A voltage regulator is checked with an A. V. R. meter.

Automotives

Under the supervision of Mr. Rondy Franks and Mr. Harry Kingsbury, our modern auto mechanics course provides the necessary training for boys who are interested in this, a field so vitally important to the functioning of our everyday life.

Our trained mechanics will find important positions in their future as technical changes are constantly presenting themselves.

Students in the automotive department receive much of their valuable training repairing and cleaning students' and faculty members' automobiles.

Office machine students are operating comptometers and Burrus calculators.

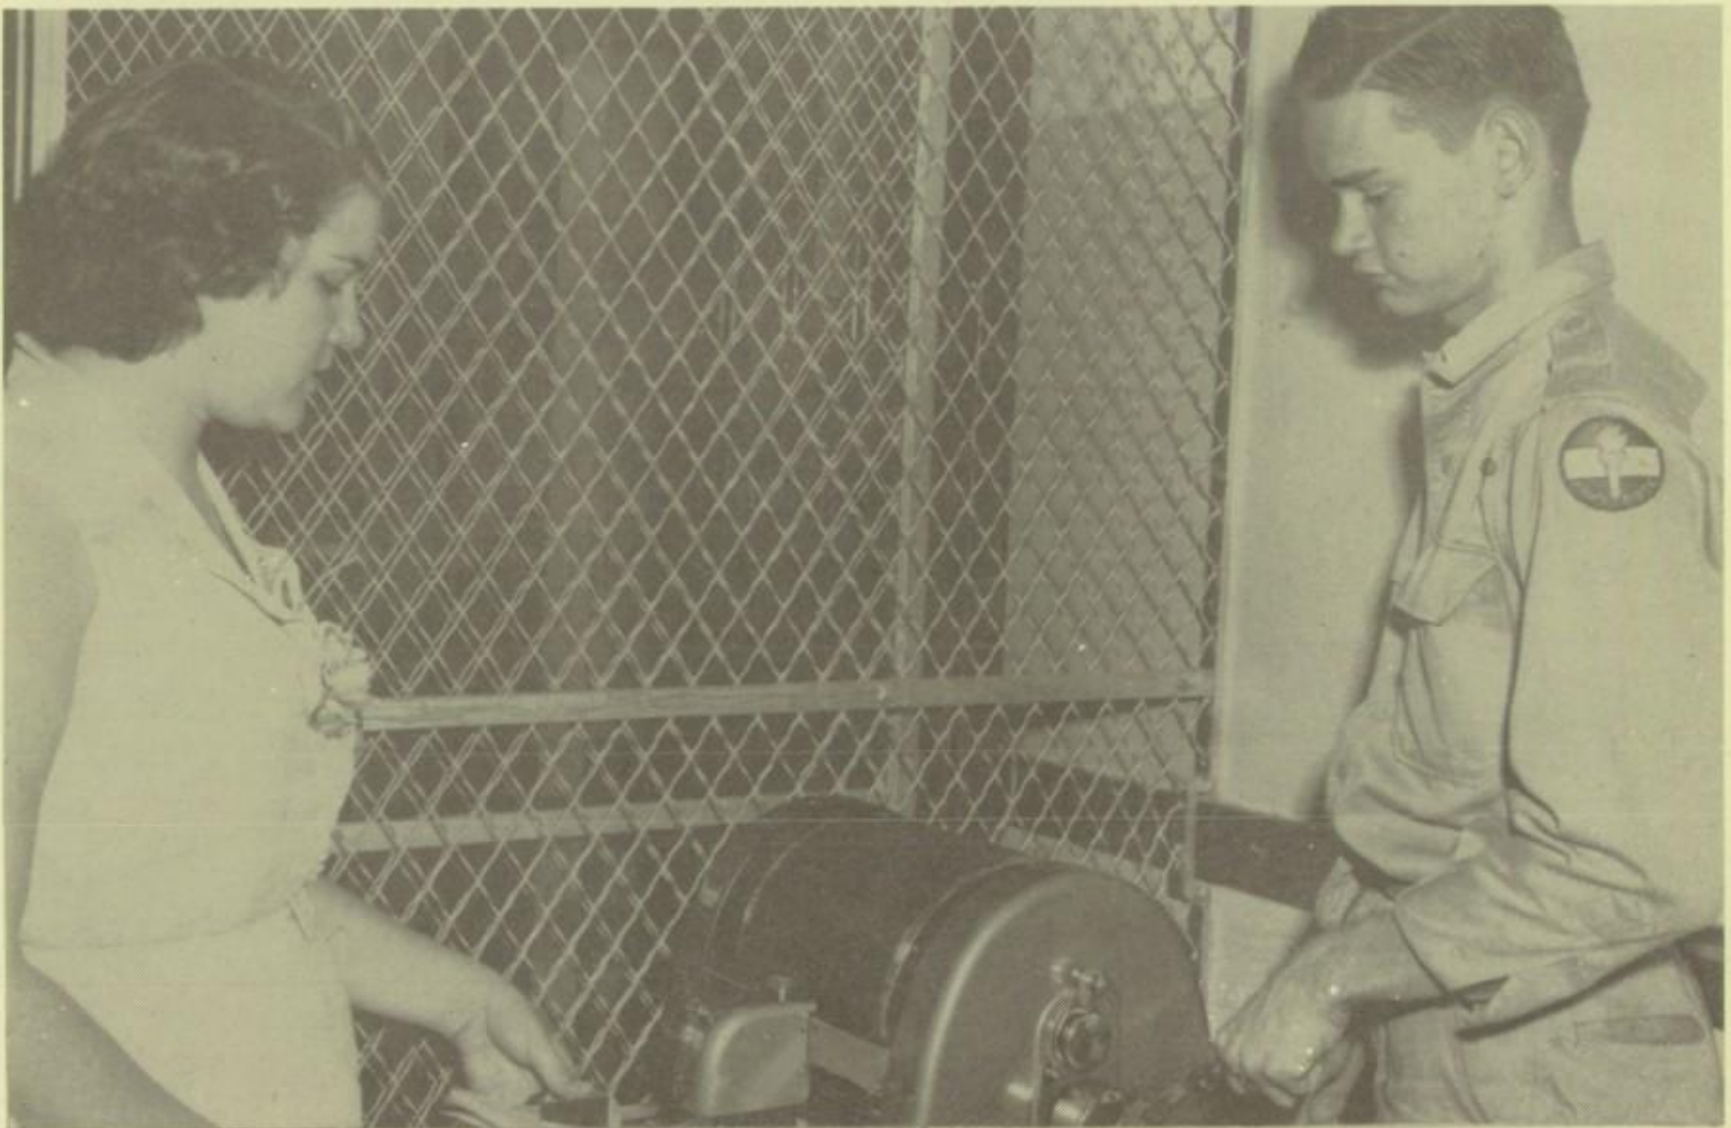

These seniors are transcribing shorthand notes.

Office machine students post on bookkeeping machine.

Senior business education students learn to operate the mimeograph machine.

Business education

Technical High School's business education department is of the finest in the Southwest. Students receive training in bookkeeping, office machines, typewriting, and short hand. They are provided with the finest of equipment to assure better education in this field. Comptometers, Burroughs calculators, and new typewriters are only a few machines used in the business department.

Our business graduates are the finest trained high school students in Fort Worth. The school employment bureau places almost at once graduates in places for which they have been trained.

Commercial Art Students work on various projects.

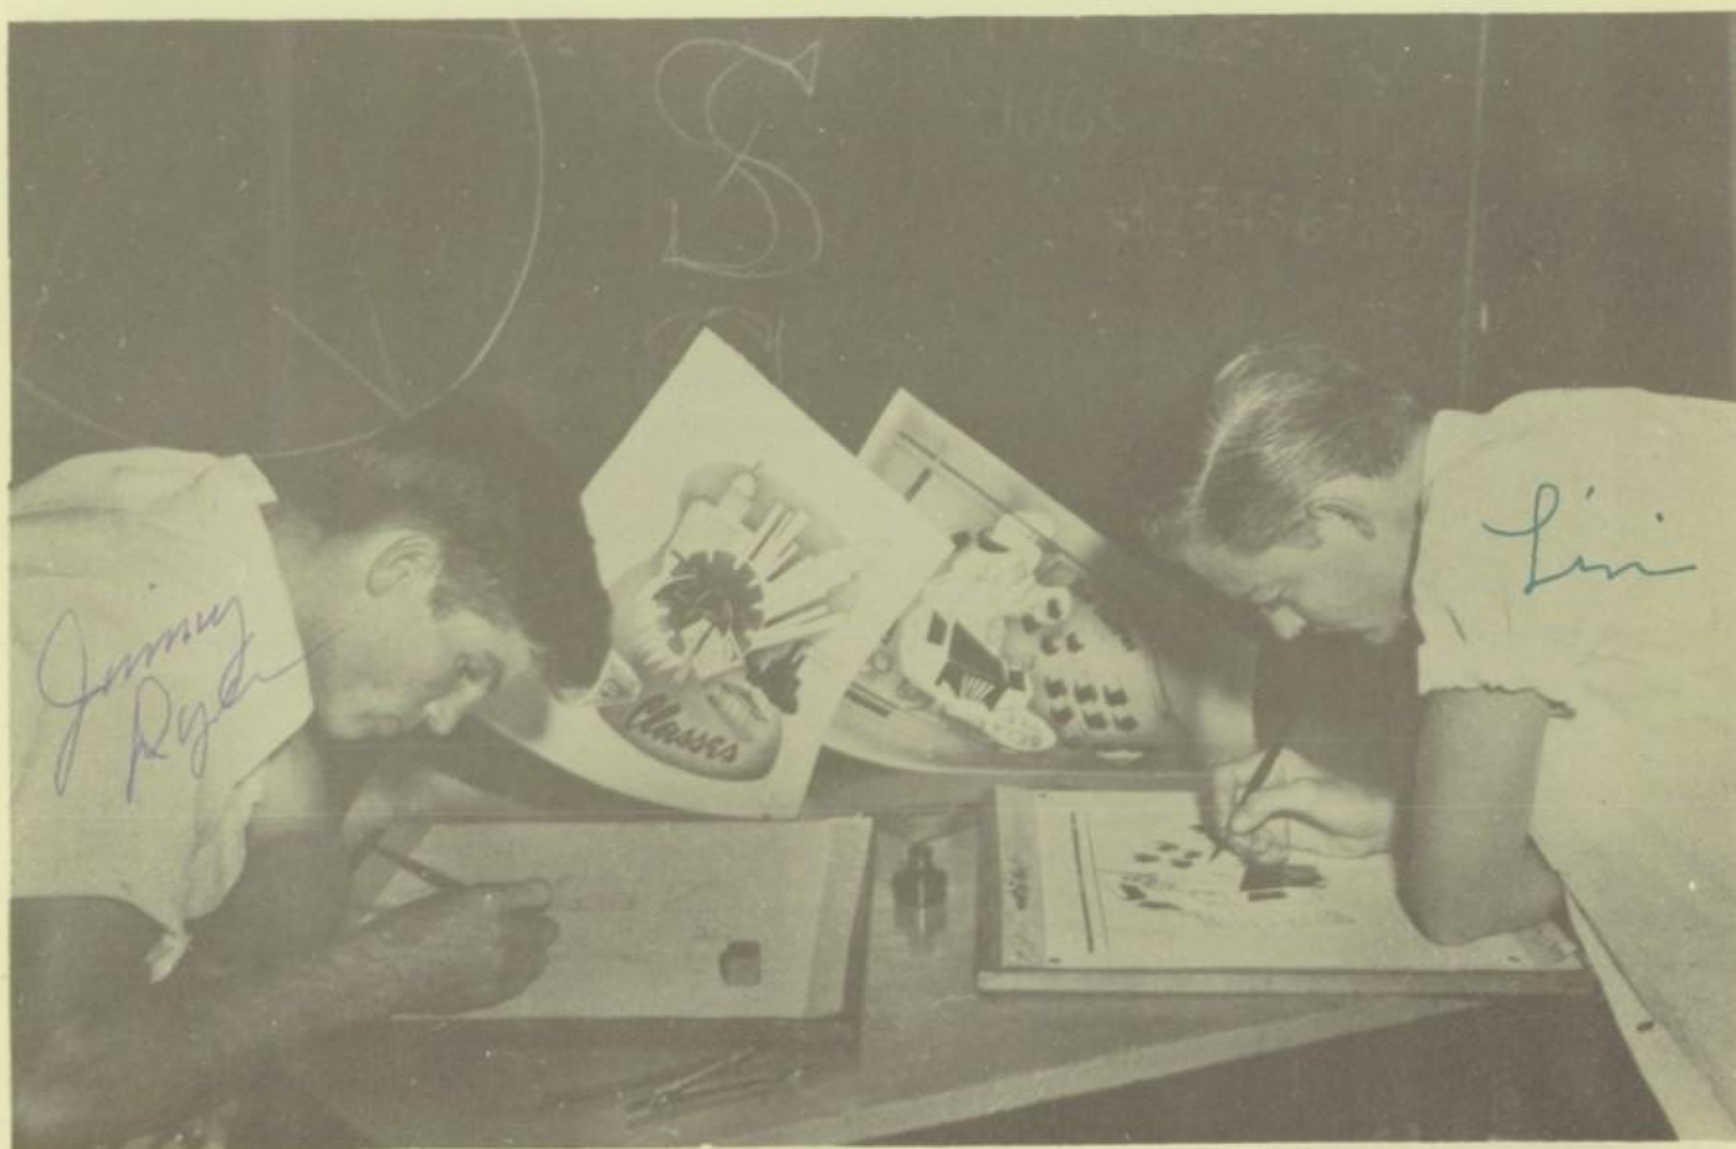

Students are taught lettering in Commercial Art.

Students in commercial art are finishing drawings for contests.

The editor and associate editor are working on the annual.

Commercial Art

From the ranks of the commercial art department come the professional artists in advertising and other art fields. Skilled and proficient, under the able guidance of Mr. Jay B. Plangman, our artists receive instructions in advertising layouts, designing, illustrating, dress designing, lettering retouching, and other sub divisions of the art field.

Part of the training received during the school year includes posters which advertise our school dances, parties, and other programs.

Many of our senior art students have the opportunity of working after school and during the summer months in Fort Worth department stores as artists.

Evelyn Fitzgerald is styling a mannequin's hair for window display.

A group of sophomores, juniors, and seniors are practicing manicuring. Background—Kathern Burleson is styling a clinical patron's hair.

Students learn to do corrective facial work derma-vac, high frequency treatment and hand massage.

Mary Hazzard receives a manicure.

Cosmetology

The high school course in cosmetology gives the student experience in both practical work and theory. By this concentrated course our graduates are able to establish themselves and take a leading part in their chosen profession.

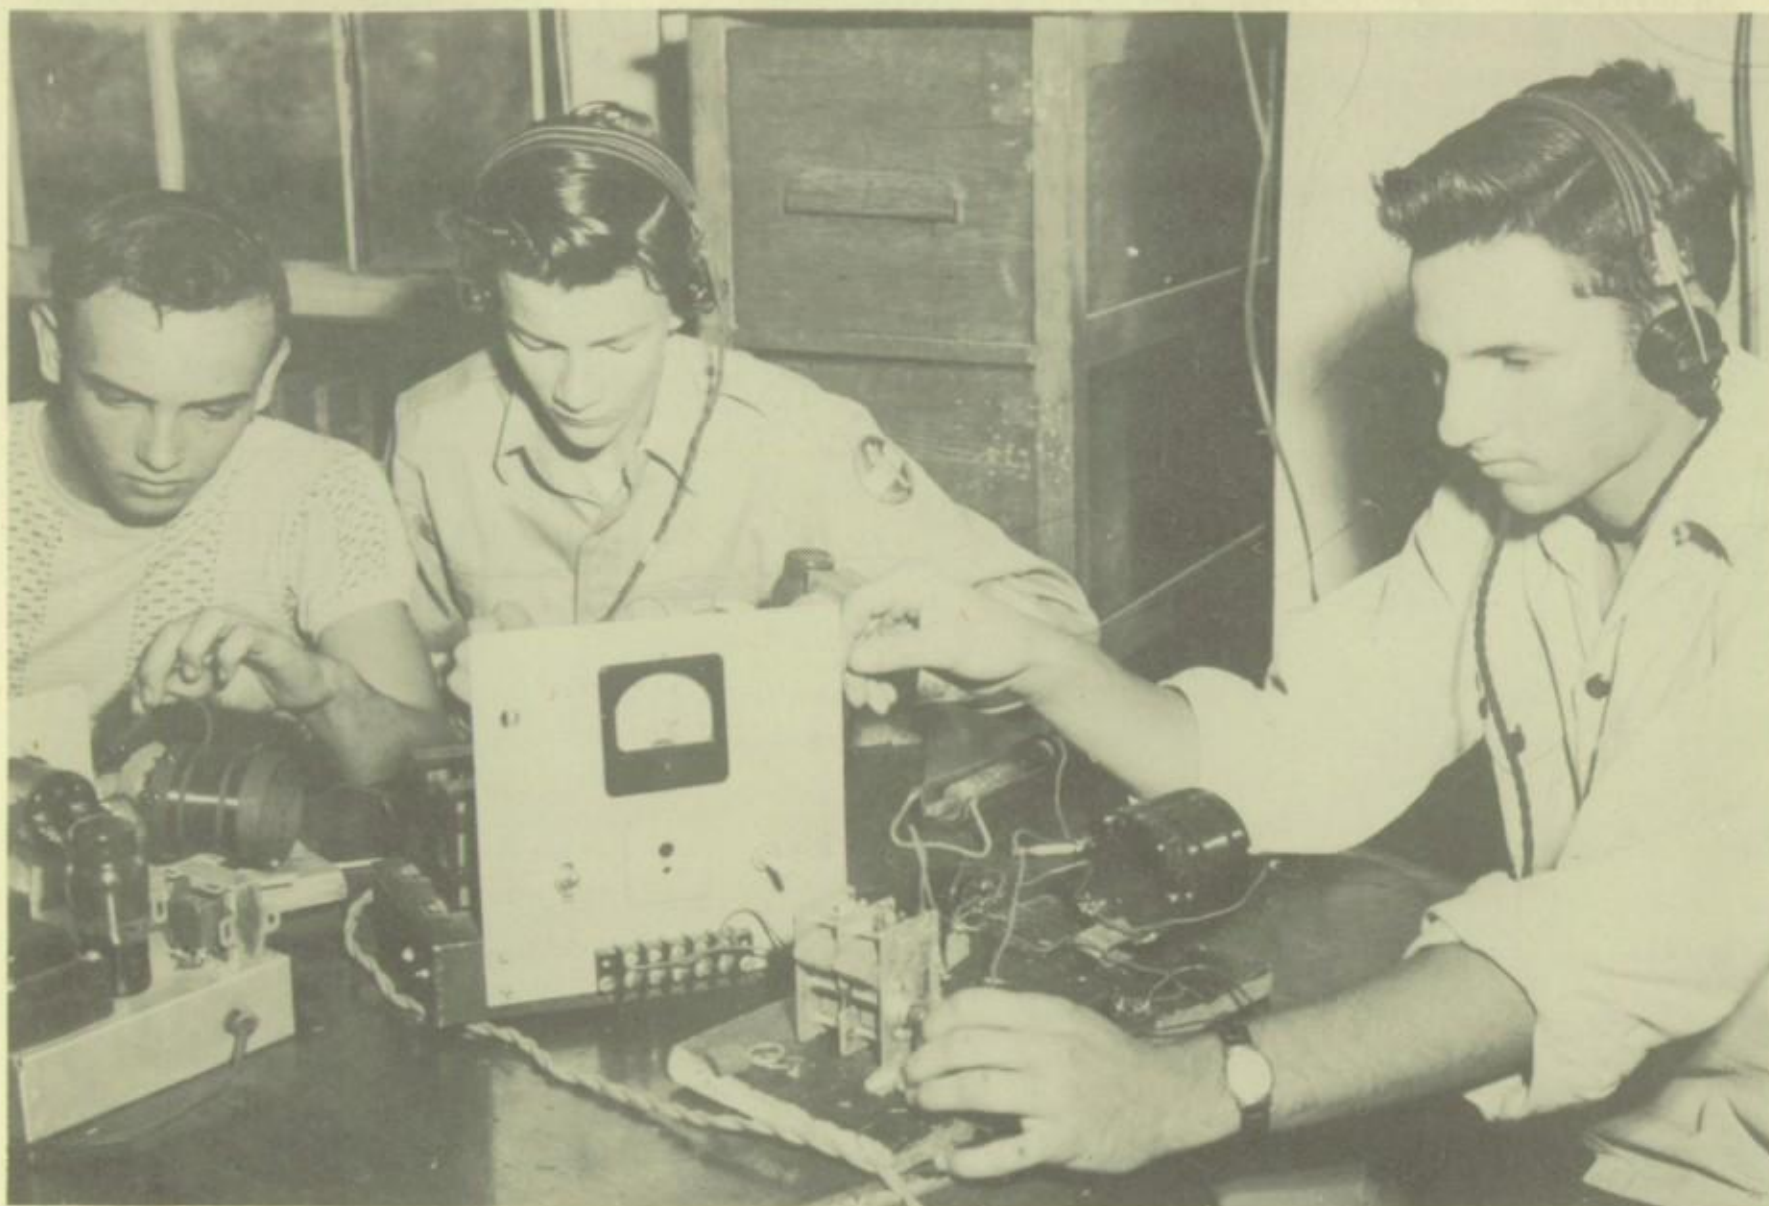

Keeping up with the times, these girls study the latest modes in hair styling, color, and general good grooming. They are training to take an important place in the world of tomorrow.

Radio shop students construct some tube receivers.

Clarence Pawpette tests operation of a radio receiver.

Charles Palmer checks a condenser.

Franklin and Garfield prepare to wind a coil.

Radio and Electric

The electric course of Tech High is one of the most valuable courses offered. The aim of Mr. Orville Wright is to teach each student all necessary basic operations and methods vital to the electrical world.

The radio division has the use of modern equipment for the instruction of repairing radios, testing instruments, and operating procedure. Students gain experience in the shop by building radio receivers, transmitters and amplifiers.

The future of modern radio rests with our trained students.

engineering drafting . . .

This junior boy is drawing some mechanical and machinery parts in engineering drafting.

These sophomore students are learning the simple principles and proper technique for drafting.

Mr. Johnson is teaching the drafting class how to use a slide rule.

Future engineers-draftsmen checking a blueprint.

Best of work and lots of luck
to a very swell
gal. Always yours
David Kennedy

Engineering Drafting

Engineering drafting is a trade taught at Technical High School which teaches the student how to make a living as well as how to live. It is the graphic language in the industrial world of engineers and designers, and it expresses and records the ideas and formation necessary for the building of machines and structures. Drafting is a field which has become highly specialized, with the particular branch of the engineering sciences to which it applies; however, the fundamental principles common to all branches are presented in this subject and upon completion the student is qualified to obtain employment as a draftsman, or should he go to an engineering school, he will have an advantage in his well-developed and broadened knowledge of this subject.

Lowell Webb learns to work on milling machine.

Surface grinder work is very interesting.

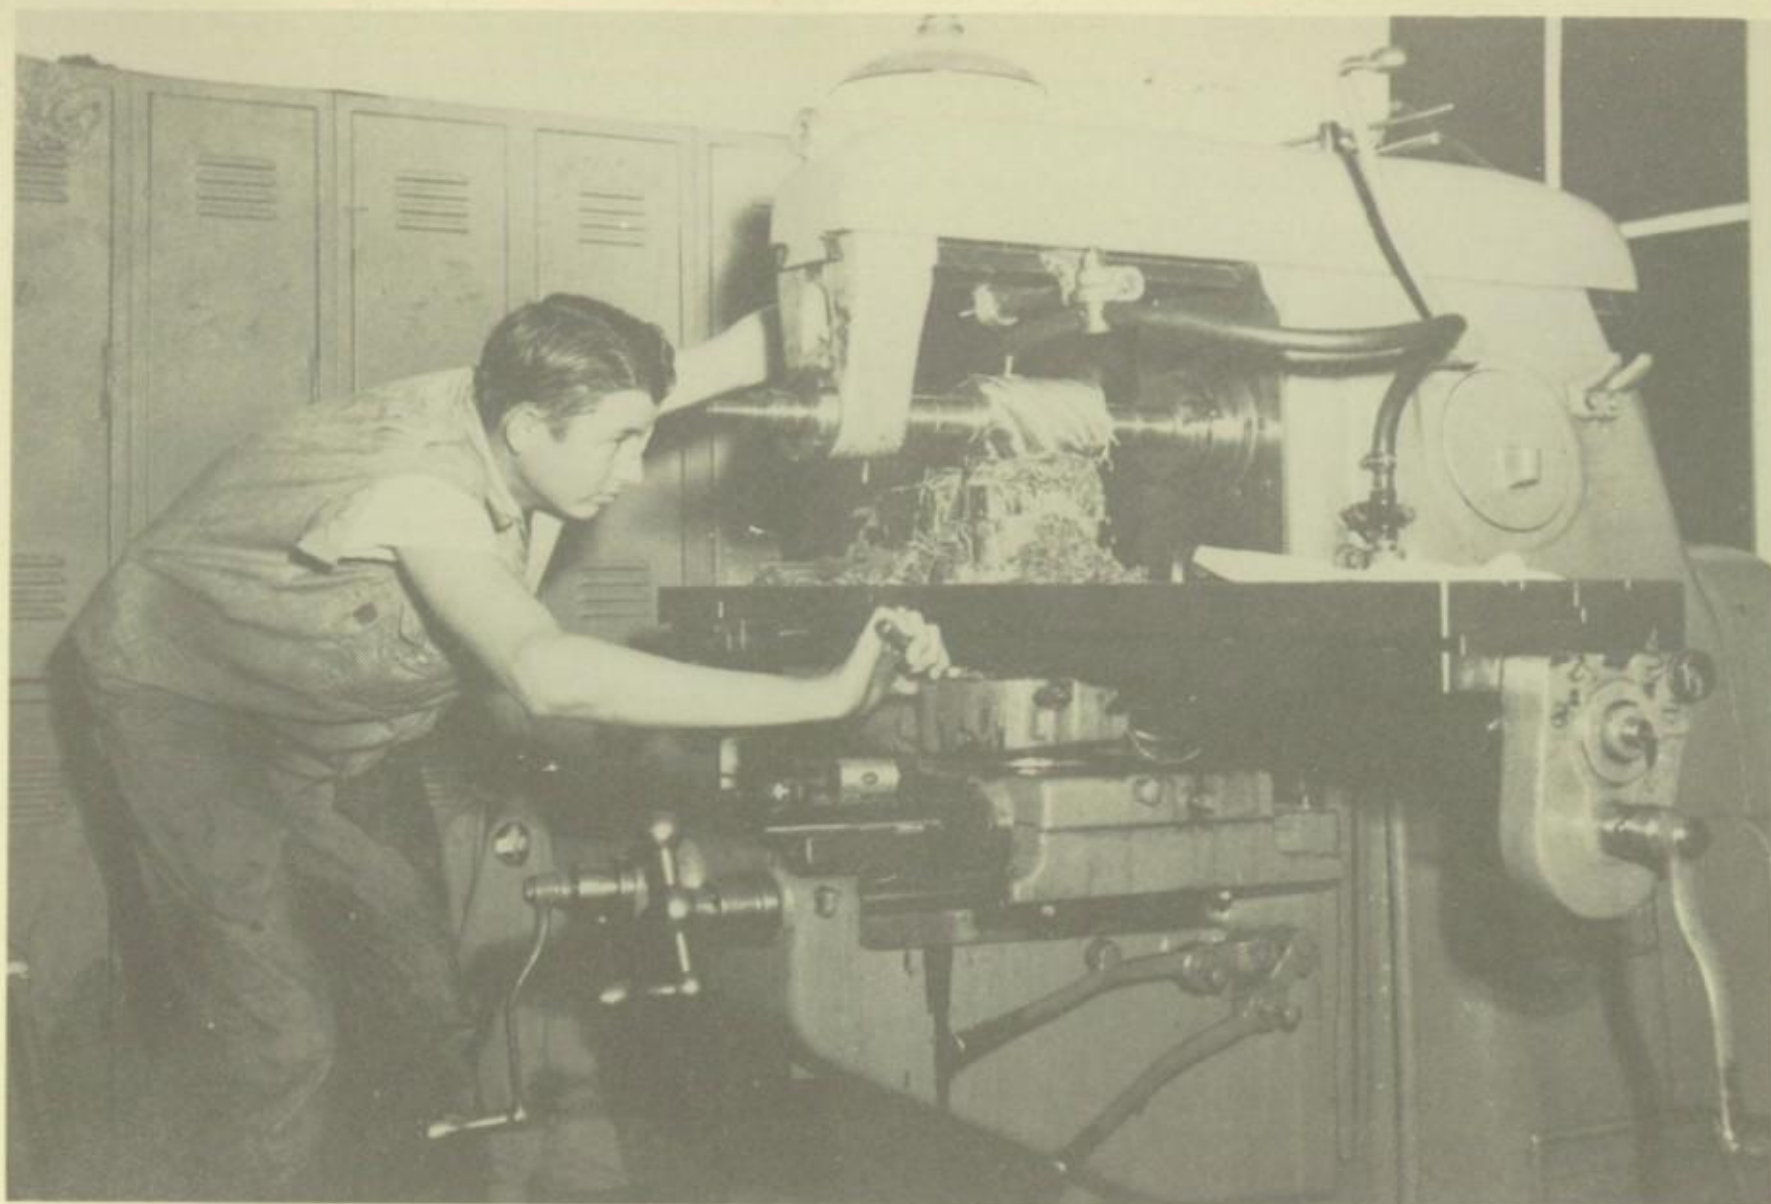

Machine shop boys make stools for electric shop.

Boys demonstrate the use of the lathe machine.

Machinery

The Technical machinists, under the direction of Mr. Beck and Mr. Sanders, are trained for skilled knowledge in work of the lathe, milling, planing, drilling, welding, heat treating, bench work, grinding, dismantling and assembling.

As students graduate from this department, jobs are usually waiting for them. Hours of study and work will pay off after graduation.

George Cone is editing movie film.

Glossing and drying prints is being demonstrated by Gilbert Johnson.

Good methods of negative drying are essential to good pictures.

Quality of a negative can be controlled by the use of this densitometer.

Photography

Another of Technical's newest and most interesting courses is the photography department. Under the able leadership of Mr. Orton Hamby, students learn to take and also make pictures. Studio pictures are an important division of the photography department.

The photo lab has been supplied with the finest and most expensive equipment.

Students learn every phase of the photographic world.

These boys are stripping up to make a plate for the annual.

Two seniors are setting up the camera.

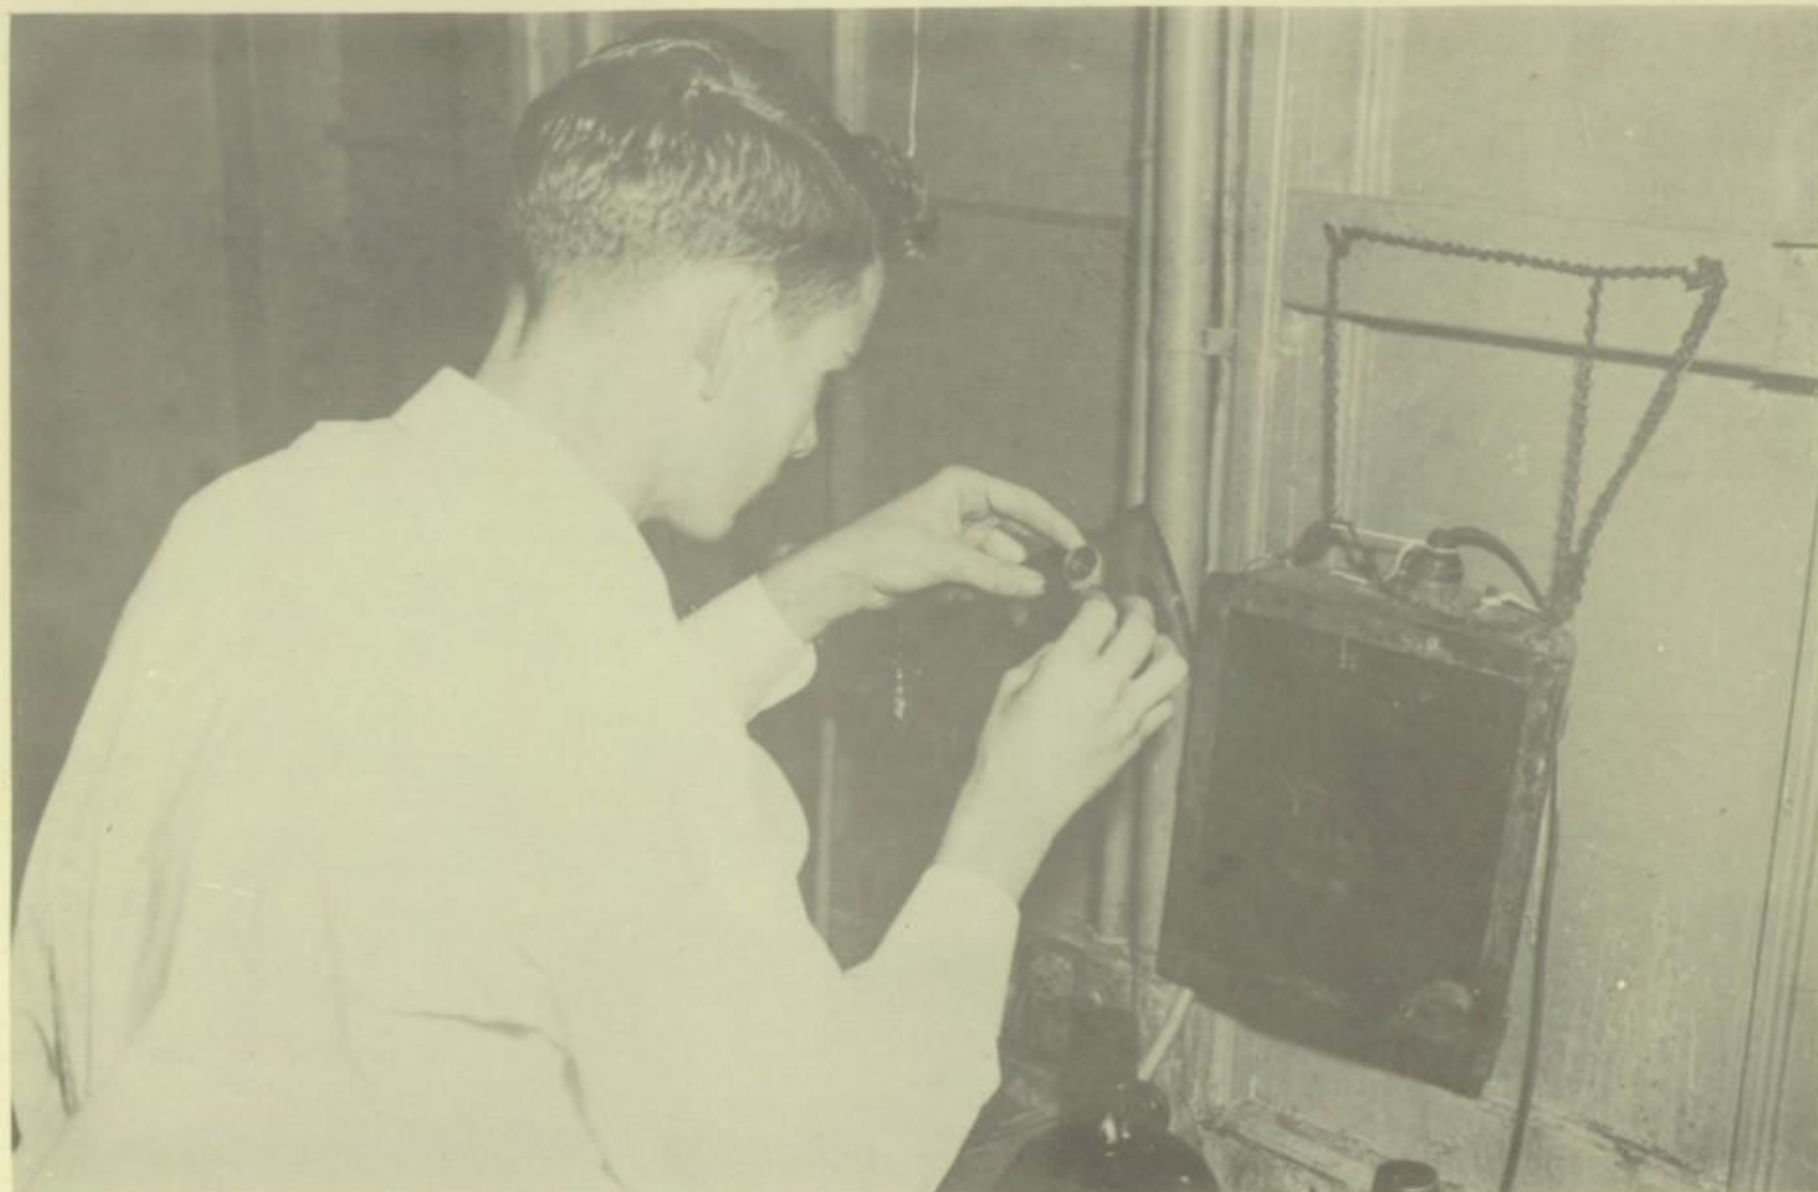

Morning shop boys work on the annual

Roman S. Mercado Jr. is setting type for the Bulldog.

Printing

The printing department is doing fine work under the direction of Mr. Bearden and Mr. McAbee:

Students, with the aid of much new equipment, receive valuable training in printing the "Tech Bulldog," our student newspaper, and also the "Bulldog," our year book. Students also print report cards, tardy slips, absentee slips, and failing notices.

woodworking industries

Seniors are finishing with the spray gun.

Students work on the mortising machine.

Two boys are at work on the mortising machine.

Spindle turning on the lathe is being demonstrated.

Woodworking Industries

Courses include the science and use of hand tools as well as the use of power machinery. Rough lumber is processed into finished lumber. The method of planing a job makes it ready for various operations of joint making, gluing, sanding, carving and finishing.

Woodworking is a place where industrious persons may, by their own will, transform a piece of wood into something of beauty, enjoyment, and usefulness.

Sponsor

Under the sponsorship of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, a girls' drill team consisting of 53 members has been organized for the first time in the history of Technical High School.

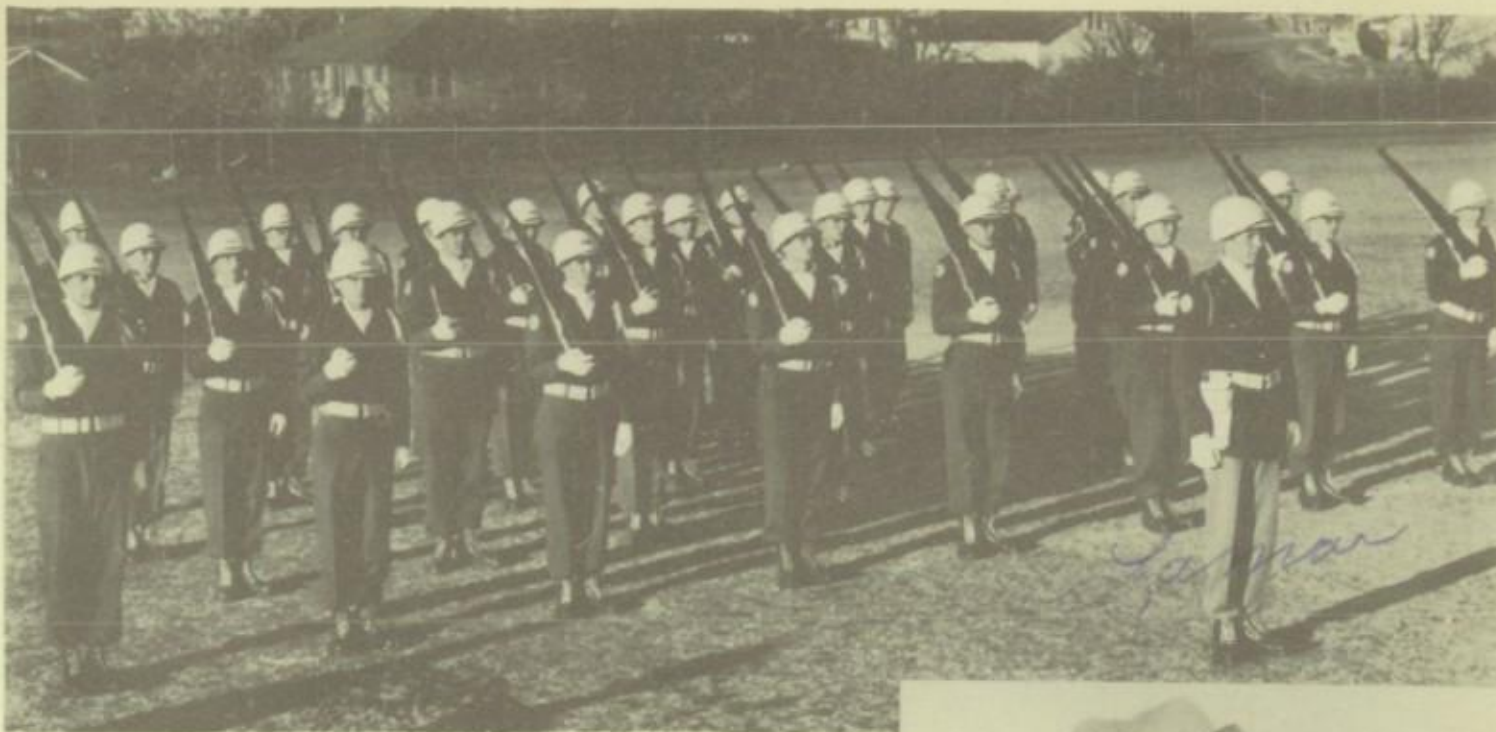

Purpose of the organization is to develop leadership, fellowship, and such specific qualities as poise.

Membership is voluntary but each girl has to meet scholastic requirements. She also has to purchase her own uniform.
